How does one build a reliable computer with unreliable components? Or, how does one extract unbiased information by tossing a biased coin? Let's have a discussion about probability, information and entropy by tossing a biased coin!

This talk is based on notes of Michael Mitzenmacher.